

WSCP Children Vulnerable to Exploitation Masterclass

17th March 2022 feedback

Evaluations are based on 85 out of 180 attendee responses.

“ INFORMATION TAKE AWAY: To consider our 'visualisation' and unconscious bias when responding to children. Also the amount and depth of TACSA -ensuring we and others are up to date. Understanding the roles of CVE Team and Policing teams. Useful contacts shared. ”

“ ... there is more support around than I was aware of . ”

“ ... Lawrence's presentation was the one i really engaged with and could see how it links to the work i do and training i deliver, also hearing about the Partnership Intelligence Portal was interesting and will be useful to share. It was interesting to find out about local trends, the work taking place and the impact of PACE in engaging with the parents to support their children and reduce risk. ”

“ I gained awareness of PACE, how it may be useful in future as we work with adults and may be relevant to them if they have a child experiencing exploitation. Also being mindful of confirmation bias and judgements based on own viewpoint. ”

“ I gained a better understanding of multiple agencies involvement in CVE ”

“ Really useful session. Thanks. Great multi-agency approach. ”
 “ I will have a look at accessing some pre-recorded training now that I am more aware of these training opportunities ”

Safeguarding is everyone's business

What would you like to hear more about in relation to Children Vulnerable to Exploitation?

- How to contact the police children's safeguarding unit directly. A couple of times we have been told that we should have spoken to them rather than 101 but the only number we have is to children's safeguarding.
- Support on completing assessment tool.
- Complexities of SEND / neuro diversity and how to support when specialist services are not available
- All child exploitation
- Work that the CVE team do with the family directly
- How to access the partnership intelligence portal please
- I think it would have been interesting to discuss local themes and trends across the Wakefield district.
- I would like more info on CSE.
- Emerging threats - innovative responses- collaborative work examples
- To be kept updated with developments within Wakefield and our School Community
- I thought that each speaker could've touched more on the topic- it felt like a promotion of services rather than being educational.

A selection of additional feedback

- Really well run course thanks again
- Three hours is quite a long session to fit into the school day. Two hours would be more appropriate as a maximum time length
- Very informative
- Very clear delivery from the different speakers.
- Very informative and interesting training. All the trainers were very engaging and knowledgeable about the topics they presented.
- A really useful session and very relevant to my job role - thank you
- Well chaired
- It is difficult to say which presentation was most useful and having to choose one for the evaluation as all presenters are clearly dedicated and knowledgeable about their work
- The session was really good - with good speakers
- It would have been a great opportunity to make the link and remind professionals how the various services use a trauma informed and trauma responsive approach. Adverse childhood experiences were mentioned but to embed trauma informed practice fully across the district; I think clear links and examples to flag it at every opportunity would have been beneficial
- Very useful and informative workshop and it was good to be able to access from place of work.
- Please offer more comfort breaks. After 20 minutes intense listening, the amount of information absorbed diminishes for most people. The content was very useful and interesting but there was too much information in one sitting.
- It would be useful to have the slides before hand for note taking
- Very well led and presented - thank you
